Dalya Nadeem's paintings, inspired by traditional homes and the desert, transform into her jewellery designs

UAE

Iraqi jewellery designer Dalya Nadeem, based in the UAE, draws inspiration from traditional architectural designs to craft her delicate modern pieces. As an artist, Nadeem connects her paintings with the vibrancy of Arab culture. Known for its luxury, traditional, minimal and meaningful designs with a modern twist, from precious stones to agriculturally grown pearls, Dalya Nadeem Jewellery is opening its first store in Dubai

Dubai is a favourite for buying jewellery as it has organised market, purity in gold and is tax-free: Tony Mamiya

UAE

Established in 1966, Eva Jewelry by Tony Mamiya made the transition from a single store to three outlets specializing in engagement rings in Dubai. The brand offers 18-carat as well as 14- and 9-carat diamond jewellery made of white gold, yellow gold, and rose gold. Mamiya believes that Dubai is a significant regional centre for the trade of gold

Gold may gradually cross $2,500 as dollar thrust appears to fade, say industry analysts

UAE

According to experts, gold has performed during recessions and stagflation due to its status as a reliable store of value, and has been used as a hedge against inflation. One of the reasons why most analysts see so much potential in gold is because of how resilient it has been in the last few months

Alrosa mines 390.7-carat diamond, largest gem to be found in a decade in Russia

RUSSIA

This stone is the largest gem-quality diamond mined in Russia since 2013. In recent years, Alrosa has focused on cutting and marketing its largest gems in international auction houses, including Christie's. However, sanctions imposed by countries including the US and UK, prohibiting the import of Russian gem-quality diamonds, could hamper any potential sale of the newly recovered stone
